

At IntelliGro we understand that the right solution starts on your farm

InteliGro is a well-known and leading crop management company in SA with a holistic approach to agriculture, and our integrated crop management (ICM) focus involves several aspects.

The right solution at the right time

1. Together with a strong team of crop solutions specialists, a highly experienced and scientifically based technical support team and our valued suppliers and products, InteliGro is in a position to supply the right technical solutions (crop protection and plant nutrition) at the right time, for the right purpose.
2. It starts in the soil, with a scientific approach to soil rectification and nutrition, as well as root conditioning that forms the basis of an integrated plant nutrition approach. This is supported by the timely management and manipulation of the plant nutritional status above the ground, based on the specific crop needs to ensure a healthy crop and good quality yields.
3. What would modern agriculture be without technology? We embrace this aspect of development and offer a wide range of technological solutions to assist with in-field decision making. We have partnered with CropWatch Africa to bring you a user-friendly data platform with a strong focus on monitoring.

4. Considering sound technical solutions and market access demands, we are constantly developing and bettering our biological approach through InteliBio Solutions, to have more solutions to include in a well-planned integrated crop protection approach. The different key aspects that form part of InteliBio Solutions include biocontrol, biostimulants, bioinoculants and the newly added bio-mass (soil health) segments.
5. A very important focus project for InteliGro is our Intelekt Solutions plots. We have different trial sites where we perform various trials to accumulate scientifically based data and insights to offer you the best advice on your farm. In a market overflowing with opinions, insight and data makes the difference.

InteliGro is now part of the WinField United Group, and in a most favourable position to bring you even more new technology and innovative solutions.

In essence, things don't just change, they keep getting better.

InteliGro – with us you are growing goodness

info@inteligro.co.za